Jewelcase Edition with white tray and 12-page booklet

Ellereve returns with a deeply evocative acoustic album titled 'Funeral Songs', a haunting collection that captures the raw, unfiltered emotion of her music. This release serves as a bridge to her highly anticipated full-length album, offering a glimpse into the more intimate, stripped-back side of her artistry. Featuring ten carefully reimagined tracks from her discography, the album is a journey through the soulful and haunting melodies that have captivated her fans, now reinterpreted with just acoustic guitar and cello.

Among the featured songs are some of her most beloved classics, including "Cosmos" and "Colorblind," both of which are transformed into stirring acoustic pieces that showcase Ellereve's powerful songwriting in its most vulnerable form. Mixed at the House of Inkantation, 'Funeral Songs' strips away the electrified intensity of Ellereve’s dark rock sound, replacing it with a fragile, shivering dark folk atmosphere that feels both ethereal and deeply personal. These recordings evoke the atmosphere of her live performances, rich with emotion and vulnerability, while showcasing the delicate balance between light and shadow that defines her work.

In addition to the reimagined classics, this release also includes two brand-new tracks from her upcoming album, offering fans an exclusive taste of what’s to come. With a runtime of 40 minutes, this special release serves as both an intimate reflection on her past work and a mesmerizing prelude to her future, making it the perfect soundtrack for the dark season ahead.
