Release date April 11th 2025, shipping early April, comes on transparent green vinyl limited to 300 copies.

Imperishable cuts the fat and goes straight for the throat!

Melodic Swedish Death Metal with aggressive hooks!
With their new album “Swallowing the World”, Imperishable sharpens their signature blend of melody and aggression, diving deeper into the sonic territory carved out by pioneers like Necrophobic, Death, and At the Gates.

This album isn’t just a nostalgic dive; it’s a reinvention of Swedish Death Metal’s most melodic side, set to make its mark on the modern scene.
Imperishable teamed up with none other than Andy LaRocque at Sonic Train Studios (At the Gates, Lord Belial, King Diamond), who handled recording, mixing, and mastering duties.

LaRocque’s production brings out the album’s intricate layers and gives its melodic elements room to breathe without sacrificing a shred of brutality.
Visually, Juanjo Castellano crafted the album’s cover art, capturing the album’s dark, epic feel and adding a final grim touch.
With aggressive riffing that’s both blistering and melodic, “Swallowing the World” is more than a throwback, it’s a forward stride in the genre, proving that melodic Death Metal can be as fierce as it is haunting.

Line up:
Henric Skoog - Vocals
Robin Holmberg - Guitars
Christopher Hjelte - Bass
Niklas Holmberg - Drums

• Front cover artwork by Juanjo Castellano (Vomitory, Skeletal Remains, Coffins and many more)
• Recorded, mixed and mastered by Andy LaRocque at Sonic Train Studios (Lord Belial, At The Gates, King Diamond and many more!)
• Guest vocals by Dennis Röndum (Swawn of Possession)
• Guest guitar solo by Andy LaRocque (King Diamond, Death)

For fans of: At the Gates, Death, Dissection, Necrophobic, Dismember, (old) Metallica
