Morbid God's 1992 Serpent Angel, Moonspell's 1993 Anno Satanae and 1994's Under the Moonspell, constitute the unlikely but much revered Moonspell's early days and their only recordings in Portugal with unnamable producers, before they went to Germany to record Wolfheart, their wolferian debut album.

Punctuated by raw and serpentine atmospheres, that evolved in their Adipocere's semaphore mini-album Under the Moonspell into a hellish extravaganza of oriental and melodic impromptus, this new collection curated by Langsuyar himself (aka Fernando Ribeiro) includes also the Under Satanae 2007 re-recordings long out of print and of the digital realm, which makes of this new Alma Mater release, the label's most ambitious affair so far.
