Vermianaevus have arisen from the vast lunar wastelands, wreaking havoc and cosmic devastation with their forthcoming self-titled debut full-length.

Vermianaevus explore sounds of the foreboding depths and lunar caverns, hidden from human consciousness and presented here in seven horrific sonic emanations from the great unknown rock in the eternal void. What vile creatures lurk in the unknown depths of the great white plasma? Venture into the depths, where no light has ever entered since the dawn of time. Hear the downpour of darkness, bestowed by the shades over universe...

This new sentience has been beckoned into existence by Hekla, Karapan Darvish, and Exesor, while the sounds and compositions captured on Vermianaevus date back several years. Although the origins of the project are somewhat shrouded in mystery, the blistering, bludgeoning, yet oftentimes eerily haunting audio captured here exhibits a rabid focus and dedication rarely seen or experienced in modern extreme sonic expression.
